Just a PSA 🚫🚫

Martinsburg College is a complete SCAM. They lure military and spouses in with the MyCAA grant, have a national accreditation that is in jeopardy, NO EMPLOYER ACCEPTS THEIR CERTIFICATIONS OR DEGREES, and because of it being a national accreditation NO decent college will accept their credits for you to continue your education elsewhere. If you're lucky, MAYBE one or two classes will transfer.

They're also recently advertising an "articulation" program with Trident University, WGU, AND Bellevue University. 🚫 this is FALSE.

And yes this is public. I'm a little tired of seeing people get SCAMMED by these annoying reps.

Also note: you can use your MyCAA grant at just about ANY college.

ETA: since this is starting to go viral I'll say there's a great group called Mil Smarts that leads people the right way with educational needs

ETA: you can potentially get your mycaa funding back if you've been scammed by the school. Military one source has requested that anyone who would like to inquire about a refund to contact them directly. If overseas there is an online chat option. Phone lines are open 7-10pm central time as well.

Please file a grievance at the following link for ANY school you feel the need to.

🚫 Be warned if you comment as a current student- MC is watching this post. I think I peed on their Cheerios.

They're also deleting the post everytime it's shared in one of their spouse ahem prey groups.

Sarah Kirkman Oh yeah for sure!! I used my MYCAA at The New York Institute of Photography which paid for it all, and still have some leftover 😊 I am currently attending American Public University and it's AWESOME, 100% online and also military friendly 😊

Sheryl Shine To answer some questions

- I cannot respond to the hundreds of messages in my inbox
- I am not interested in speaking to anyone at Martinsburg College. I will not delete the post and you cannot change my mind about your school. Nor the hundreds of others who have the same mindset.
- always look for REGIONALLY accredited schools as well as any additional accreditations your program may require.
- Mil Smarts is currently holding all membership requests until further notice since some reps are hurt and trying to join. Feel free to still join, but we are going to take time to sort through the requests to try to keep our members as protected as possible. You must answer all question to be considered.
- to get information on getting your funding back, please call the 1-800 number for military one source and MyCAA. File an OFFICIAL complaint on Martinsburg so that MyCAA will take them off the funding list & an official investigation can occur.
- report them to the BBB.
- PROTECT yourself moving on to other schools and DO YOUR RESEARCH. MC is not the only scammy school.

Any additions? Anna Desirae Jessica

Gabby Hall Sheryl Shine I used my mine about a year ago through them and wound up pulling out over half way through the program. When I talked to the director at the time she said she couldn't tell me whether or not they would refund it but it was unlikely because I was more than 50% through the course. Would it be too late to pursue this in hopes of getting it back?
Like · Reply · 2d

Joliz Terry I thought they were fake too. Some of the classes textbooks are like from 2012 and the books are not helpful.

Sheryl Shine Maria Howard I help military students daily with their educational needs for free. I'm pretty well known for this as well as our team who does it. I have had hundreds (not an exaggeration) come to me for help after MC. I've seen emails from directors, admissions, texts, Facebook messages etc. The school reps are trained to prey on young and ill informed spouses. They force employees to write good reviews regarding the school, it's a train wreck. The employees aren't even allowed to speak out or they get fired. I also have contacted all 3 of the aforementioned colleges after receiving notice that MC was now advertising this.

Understand this is your job to reach out to me. However, I must say that I have zero respect for you or the career path with Martinsburg that you have chosen. As an adult, especially in a leadership position you should be ensuring that all your young girls you recruit are providing accurate information to students, not harassing potential students (or what I call victims) etc. Some have even gone as far as creating spouse support groups at bases they have never even been to so that they don't get banned from bases and have

On multiple occasions I have even informed representatives of MC that I have multiple higher level degrees and am not interested in attending. What do they do? Recommend worthless certificates that would look "great" with my multiple higher level degrees. I will not send you employers direct names because the next thing you will do is contact each employer to harass them. Nobody takes your school seriously because of the antics of your representatives, the lies they tell and their continuous harassment. After questioning a representative about their "articulation" programs they have with "many" schools, I was able to narrow it down to a massive number of 3 schools. I contacted all 3 schools and have been reached out to privately and in confidence in the absence of this post by lure you with "accelerated courses" and the promise of completion in less time than going to a state or community college and then conveniently forget to show you the employment rate of students who complete programs. Community colleges have vocational and tech programs that are much less expensive and come with some sort of accreditation and/or transfer potential. I would never put my money or grants into a school that isn't regionally accredited or considered for profit. I'm sorry to anyone who's been swindled by a school like this 😞

Jessica Mechelle Visage A couple of their IT and Business programs allegedly will transfer to WGU, but WGU said on the phone that a few classes may transfer, but not necessarily the whole program. Just because the credits may transfer does NOT mean the program is regionally accredited and anyone looking to further their education should go to a regionally accredited school so they have more opportunities and choices. While MC advertises that you can transfer, it is nearly impossible. While they advertise you can find jobs with their certificates, their gainful employment disclosures states they aren't required to keep count of how many people find jobs, so they don't.

Sheryl Shine also, many programs require more than just the regional/national.

school diploma or GED. If you were to go to a state that requires licensure, you would most likely not qualify for the job or to sit for the exam to get licensure because martinsburg isnt accredited by an additional agency that reviews medical programs.

Abby Leathorn If I've completed one of their certificate programs and took the national NHA exam to become certified should I still make a formal complaint? What would my complaint consist of? That there was misrepresentation of the ability to get a job with my certificate??

Like · Reply · 11h

Sheryl Shine Abby Leathorn if you don't have an official complaint, don't file one. A minute amount of students have had success depending on their program. You are now the second person I know of- to be frank. If I told you to file, without a reason to- I'd be essentially asking you to commit fraud. Not doing that.

Sheryl Shine Reina many people have asked this. In light of my phone beeping faster than a fire alarm, I can't find time to do research on them currently. I'd Err to the side of caution, however, and ask a trusted advisor or Mil Smarts

Marissa Taylor The recruiter or whatever they are called contacted me and wouldn't leave me alone until i talked to her. She had no idea about any of the details of the program i would be interested in. And MC didn't even have the right program for me. But she pushed and pushed and wouldn't leave me alone until i agreed to apply to MC. The steps she told me to follow for MyCAA were incorrect and once i talked to someone at military one source it confirmed my suspicions about MC. They hear a lot of complaints about them. I ended up doing a program thru LSU that is actually legit and offers so much more Like · Reply · 7h
